Highlights

- Monthly return was -0.6% (YTD: 0.4%). The fund's performance has been affected by devaluations in the equity portfolio, especially in India.
- Investments amounted EUR 1.9m (vs EUR 4.1m repayments). The fund added one new investee in February:
 - Education Finance: Laudex (Mexico) is a fintech that supports lower to middle income students with loans to access education at private universities, at affordable rates. In Mexico, a significant deficit of high-quality public education exists, and many families do not have the resources to send their children to a private university. Additionally, very few banks offer student loans.
- TMF has sold its equity stake in Enda Tamweel, the largest microfinance institution in Tunisia. The buyer is existing co-shareholder Maghrebria, a local key player in the Tunisian insurance market. TMF was a shareholder in Enda Tamweel since 2018 - with an active role at board level. For more information please click here.
- The global economy continues to display impressive resilience after last year's rate hikes from major central banks. Inflation is following a downward trend both in the US and eurozone. These developments have led to better-than expected performance of emerging markets and positive investor sentiment. Access to capital markets, measured by net flows for several emerging markets improved, including India and Côte d'Ivoire.
