Highlights

- The monthly return of the fund was -0.5% (YTD: -1.0%).
- The fund showed a slightly negative return in March, as positive portfolio performance was offset by FX losses.
- The fund disbursed EUR 0.25m to existing investee Small Enterprise Foundation, a microfinance institution in South Africa that provides group-based loans primarily to women living in poor, rural communities, while receiving EUR 3.4m in repayments from existing investees.
- The intensified trade war has elevated global uncertainty, initially sparking global volatility. However, the resilience of the global economy is helping to cushion the impact of tariffs. Global volatility has often limited impact on low-income countries, where local developments are more important. The US central bank is expected to continue cutting rates, which is beneficial for emerging market currencies and their borrowing costs in foreign currency. The fund's underlying investments, institutions that are primarily active locally, as well as the micro-entrepreneurs and SMEs these institutions finance, operate almost exclusively within their own local markets and are therefore only less affected by import tariffs directly.
